

Virginia Tech investigates the noise reduction benefits of thermally non-uniform supersonic jets. Pictured is the VT Heated Supersonic Jet Rig with a custom flange designed to introduce ambient air into the plenum of the heated jet. A far-field array of microphones is used to measure the radiated sound at peak, sideline, and upstream directions.